Titulo: Puppet Therapy School Barcelona
Descripción: Who we are

We are an independent project dedicated to training and research in the therapeutic dimensions of Animated Forms. Our work is grounded in the NeuroPuppetry Method™, developed by Andrea Markovits in collaboration with Polo Fernández—a neuro-informed approach that integrates body, emotion, and materiality through the animation of puppets and objects.

Since 2017, we have developed a pioneering academic program exploring the relationship between somatic memory, nervous system regulation, and creative processes. More than 500 students have participated in our trainings, both in online programs in English and Spanish and in in-person experiences in Barcelona.

Our approach draws from fields such as polyvagal theory, enactive cognition, and relational thinking, offering an embodied framework where experience, perception, and action are in constant dialogue. We work with processes that engage trauma, shame, memory, and resilience through sensitive, symbolic, and body-based practices.

We offer diplomas, international courses, annual programs such as Puppet Therapy School, thematic workshops—on maternal memory, humor, and emotional expression—and puppet construction workshops, where making becomes an essential part of the creative and therapeutic process.

We create sustained learning spaces where the unspoken can take form, and where creative practice becomes a pathway for transformation, integration, and meaning.

1	8th Trainning in person In Barcelona	Embodied, Puppet, Shame & Trauma Inspired by polyvagal theory (Porges), the enactive approach to cognition (Varela), the somatic marker hypothesis (Damasio), and relational and object based thinking (Winnicott, Bollas, Malafouris), The Bubble of Shame (Nathanson), The Metaphor, the Genesis, and the Biology of Shame (Markovits) this approach invites participants to engage in expressive, sensitive, and embodied processes where body, perception, and materiality are in constant dialogue. Over the course of four intensive days, we will explore shame as an embodied, silent, and inhibiting experience, alongside memory, trauma, , the post-witness, and insight-in-action. Participants will engage in experiential practices that activate the expressive and symbolic potential of animated objects as pathways for resilience and reconstruction. The training offers a somatic and creative practice grounded in enaction, embodied cognition, and emotional and nervous system regulation, guided through animated forms and the NeuroPuppetry Method™.

2	17th Puppet Therapy Course Online. English version.	The International Course in Puppet Therapy is a pioneering program grounded in the NeuroPuppetry Method™, developed by Andrea Markovits in collaboration with Polo Fernández. The NeuroPuppetry Method™ is a neuro informed therapeutic approach that uses the animation of puppets and objects to activate somatic memory and mind-body integration through action itself. This model can influence both bodily and emotional responses, promoting regulation and facilitating connection with traumatic experiences within a safe, creative, and therapeutic context. This is an independent academic training, created in 2017, focused on the therapeutic dimensions of Animated Forms, and has trained over 500 students to date.

3	Diplomado Puppet Therapy Online. Versión en español	El Diplomado Intenacional en Puppet Therapy, es programa pionero basado en el NeuroPuppetry Method™ creado por Andrea Markovits en colaboración con Polo Fernández. El NeuroPuppetry Method™ es un enfoque terapéutico neuroinformado que utiliza la animación de muñecos y objetos para activar la memoria somática y la integración mente cuerpo en la acción misma. Este modelo puede influir en la respuesta corporal y emocional, promoviendo la regulación y facilitando la conexión con experiencias traumáticas dentro de un contexto seguro, creativo y terapéutico. Es una formación académica independiente creada en 2017 sobre las dimensiones terapéuticas de las Formas Animadas, y que ha formado a más de 500 estudiantes.

5	WORKSHOP: Things That Breathe: An Emotional and Material Geography of Maternal Memories	Things That Breathe An Emotional and Material Geography of Maternal Memories Facilitated by Andrea Markovits 4th Group: March-June 2026 Format: Online Structure: 8 experiential sessions Language: Spanish Dates: May 6, 13, 20, 27 June 3, 10, 17, 24 Time: 6:00–7:30 pm (Spain time) Duration: 90 minutes per session Maternal Memory is a creative and therapeutic group process for young and adult women interested in exploring their inner landscapes from a creative, sensitive, and relational perspective. This new fourth cycle proposes a journey into affective memory related to the maternal, not from a linear biographical perspective, but through symbols, materials, and animated forms that allow participants to move through what is remembered, not remembered, and not spoken, through action itself. This space invites a deep exploration of the maternal through work with objects, moving metaphors, gesture, mark-making, silence, action, breath, group dialogue, and material animation. In this way, the maternal, whether present or absent, loving or ambiguous, lived or transmitted, is given the possibility to be animated, physicalized (to become a thing), and re-signified.
